DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

As indicated in MPEP 2173.05(p) II:

A single claim which claims both an apparatus and the method steps of using the apparatus is indefinite under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph. In Ex parte Lyell, 17 USPQ2d 1548 (Bd. Pat. App. & Inter. 1990), a claim directed to an automatic transmission workstand and the method steps of using it was held to be ambiguous and properly rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph.

Such claims should also be rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 based on the theory that the claim is directed to neither a "process" nor a "machine," but rather embraces or overlaps two different statutory classes of invention set forth in 35 U.S.C. 101 which is drafted so as to set forth the statutory classes of invention in the alternative only. Id. at 1551.

Claim 11 requires both apparatus and method steps. The claim requires that the furnace heats the base material, and that the standard rod "being supplied". Since the claim is directed to neither a process nor a machine, applicant cannot obtain a patent therefore.

Similarly, the following 112 rejection is made:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

As pointed out above, hybrid type claims are indefinite. Alternatively: it is unclear what the functional limitations require.

From MPEP 2173.05(h):

Alternative expressions are permitted if they present no uncertainty or ambiguity with respect to the question of scope or clarity of the claims. One acceptable form of alternative expression, which is commonly referred to as a Markush group, recites members as being "selected from the group consisting of A, B and C." See Ex parte Markush, 1925 C.D. 126 (Comm'r Pat. 1925).

Presently, claim 11 (line 12) has a group which is very similar to the above accepted form, but there is no indication that the group is "consisting of" the members. Therefore it is impossible for anyone to tell if applicant's group is open or closed to additional members - and thus the claim presents uncertainty or ambiguity with respect to the question of scope of the claim. If the above "acceptable form" is not desirable for Applicant, Examiner can be telephoned for other expressions. It is unclear if the claim requires at least one of each of the mechanisms - or if it requires only one of them.

It is unclear what is meant by a "standard" rod. Clearly not any rod can be a standard rod - otherwise the term "standard" has no relevance. No part of a claim can be disregarded as irrelevant. One would not be reasonably capable of determining whether a particular rod is "standard" or not. One of ordinary skill should be permitted to be able to avoid infringement by using a similar apparatus which has a rod which is not a standard.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hoshino 5674306.

See the prior Office action, and below.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 5/29/2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Regarding the 35 USC 101 rejection: It is argued that the method steps have been replaced with structural language. Examiner disagrees – see above rejection.

It is also argued that claim 11 has been amended to correct the group so as to recite acceptable language. Examiner disagrees – the language is substantially the same.

It is argued that claim 11 has been amended to clarify that the standard rod is supplied separately. This point does not address the essence of the rejection: that one would not understand what is meant by a rod being a “standard” rod. For example, it is unclear as to what standard the standard rod is standard.

As to the prior art rejection, it is argued that Hoshino does not teach “that the standard rod is supplied separately from the base material of the glass rod to adjust...” this is not very relevant because supplying and adjusting are method steps – not structure. Hoshino need not teach the method steps for anticipation of apparatus claims. But to the degree that the claims do require such steps: applicant may be correct that Hoshino does not anticipate the steps – but such would not be allowable due to the rejections under sections 101 and 112 of 35 USC.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
